Message from the Social Security Administration—You Can Help People Who Face Barriers to Service

People who struggle with low-income, limited English proficiency, homelessness, mental illness, and other challenges have historically relied on getting help in person from Social Security.

During much of the pandemic, Social Security offices have been open only for in-person appointments for limited, critical situations, depending upon local office conditions. These measures help protect the health and safety of its employees and the public they serve.

Social Security has continued to offer many services on their website that are secure and easy to use. And their representatives have continued to help people by telephone on their National 800 Number and when calling a local office. Many underserved people face barriers to service when unable to access or use the internet or telephones to get the help they need. Social Security understands this and is asking for your help.

If you know someone who cannot use Social Security’s online services at www.ssa.gov, please encourage them to call their local office or the National 800 Number for assistance. If Social Security cannot help them by phone, the local office can determine if an in-person appointment or other option may be available to help.

To serve those who need more help, Social Security is partnering with community and faith-based groups on a national outreach campaign. The goal of the campaign is to increase public awareness of the Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) benefit programs and to support third-party groups that can help others apply for benefits. The SSI and SSDI programs provide critical financial assistance, and, in many cases, grant access to healthcare and the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, also known as SNAP.

Key components of Social Security’s outreach campaign include:

Working with community and faith-based groups: Your group can make all the difference in the lives of people in your community. You can assist with taking applications for SSI or refer people to Social Security. Interested in helping someone people submit a claim for SSI? Please contact the Social Security Regional Communications Director for your state to learn how.

Online tools and informational pages that your organization can use and refer to, including:

- Resources for people helping others access Social Security services at www.ssa.gov/thirdparty.
- Outreach materials for partner groups working with people who face barriers to service at www.ssa.gov/thirdparty/groups/vulnerable-populations.html.
- Updated information for faith-based and community groups, including a new toolkit and fact sheets about SSI and SSDI, at www.ssa.gov/thirdparty/groups/faithandcommunity.html.
A national advertising campaign on TV, radio, and social media, with emphasis on benefits for children with disabilities.

Social Security collaborated with members of the claimant advocacy community on this campaign. Their voice is reflected throughout the campaign, ensuring support groups like yours have the resources needed to be successful and help those you care about.

In addition to the valuable resources above, Social Security encourages you to also visit its Information for Groups and Organizations web page and related What’s New web page for groups and organizations. Subscribe to get updates and stay informed.

We encourage you to visit and subscribe to Social Security’s blog at blog.ssa.gov to receive alerts when they publish new articles from their partners and share the latest information about their national outreach campaign.

Social Security Disability and Veterans Affairs Disability — How Do They Compare?

The Social Security Administration and the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) have joined forces to create a Fact Sheet, "Social Security Disability and Veterans Affairs Disability — How Do They Compare?.

This quick reference explains the differences between each agency’s disability program. Through our partnership with the VA, we hope to help the veteran community navigate each agency’s programs more easily.

I urge you to visit our veterans webpage at https://www.ssa.gov/people/veterans/ to view the Fact Sheet and other resources, including information on returning to work, links to VA healthcare and benefits programs, and disability benefits for wounded warriors. We also have resources for the parents and spouse of veterans. Remember, there are important differences between Social Security Disability Insurance (SSDI) and VA disability benefits. Just as important, a veteran who receives benefits from the VA could also be eligible for SSDI.

I encourage you to share this information with your members, colleagues, affiliates, and other interested parties.

Sincerely,

Jeffrey Buckner

Learn more about conference location and format

The 2022 Meaningful Care Conference is the effort of a group of LGBTQ2S+ focused community programs and individuals who have joined together to promote culturally responsive healthcare for clinicians and social service providers working with members of the LGBTQ2S+ community. It is the intention that the knowledge shared at this conference will improve health care provision, utilization, satisfaction, and outcomes for LGBTQ2S+ consumers through expanding access to culturally competent care.

The conference continues to be one of the largest LGBTQ2S+ cultural competency trainings for medical and social service providers on the west coast, with over 400 attendees biannually. The 2022 Meaningful Care Conference is coordinated by the LGBTQ Health Coalition of the Columbia-Willamette, a community-based partnership of agencies and individuals serving the LGBTQ+ community.

Presentations should relate to the 2022 Conference Theme: Embracing Community Wisdom: A Trauma-Informed Anti-Racist Lens for LGBTQIA2S+ Health.

Special consideration will be given to presentations that focus on one of the following topics:

- Intersectional identities
- Anti-racist practice

- Rural healthcare considerations
- Transgender & nonbinary identities across the lifespan
- Public policy, social justice, & advocacy

Session formats may include lectures, panel presentations, roundtable discussions, and interactive workshops. 45-minute, 60-minute, and 90-minute sessions are being considered in addition to 15-20 minute panel presentations. As we endeavor to include as many voices as possible in program content, presentations may be combined in a panel format based on subject matter. Some sessions may be scheduled to repeat, once in the morning and again in the afternoon.

Conference fees will be waived for presenters. Deadline for proposal submission is Monday, November 22nd 2021, at 12pm Pacific Time. Proposals will be reviewed in the order they are received, and submitters will be notified by January 24, 2020.

The kitchen remodel at the Day Center has completed and we are cooking breakfast out of the new kitchen each morning!
